Professor Dr. Jaeck will be director of the Physical Education Congress.

The invitation to this congress is worded as follows:-

"The Olympic Games, with their gathering of the best athletes of all nations and of the leaders of sport from throughout the whole world, offer a unique opportunity for the study of physical education. We therefore have the honour to invite all nations participating in the Olympic Games to send to the Games a team of male sport students, who will be our guests from their arrival at the German frontier and during their entire stay in Germany. We would fix the number of each team at thirty men. We propose to accommodate these teams in simple, soldierly fashion, and correspondingly they would have their meals together. Thursday, the 23rd July, 1936, is foreseen as the date of arrival of the teams, and Monday, August 17th, as the date of departure. The joint work will commence on the 24th July. The entire period of the Games will be available for the joint work; during the Games the mornings will be devoted to it, whilst on the afternoons there will be opportunity to witness the Olympic contests. The joint work is so proposed that first daily there shall be sport, that then the schools shall mutually display their work in sport displays, and finally lectures and discussions shall be held. The language of the congress shall be German, but French and English lectures shall be admitted. Naturally excursions and visits in Berlin and the surroundings are also planned. The joint work will be carried out under uniform direction. We expect that the discipline of all groups necessary for the success of the joint work will be assured. We would request your friendly intimation by the 31st May, 1936, as to whether we can count on your acceptance of this invitation. So soon as a sufficient number of acceptances has been received, we shall work out a programme and forward it to all countries which will visit us".

Housing will be in tents in the neighbourhood of the Reich Sport Field in Grunewald; field beds and tents will be provided.
